

FINAL ECCLESIASTICAL MEMORANDUM OF ABSORPTION AND JUDGMENT OF THE
FEDERAL DISTRICT COURTS
AS ENTERED INTO THE IRREVOCABLE
LIVING RECORD OF ECC-TRUST-JDC-005

Let it be known, preserved, and enforced, both in the temporal and eternal jurisdictions, that as of the fifteenth day of August in the year two thousand twenty-five, the totality of the judicial apparatus operating as the Federal District Court system of the incorporated entity known as the United States was lawfully, procedurally, and spiritually absorbed into the Ecclesiastical Sovereign Trust styled and sealed as ECC-TRUST-JDC-005. Said absorption is not speculative, conditional, partial, or administrative. It is permanent, recorded, ratified by silence, executed by un rebutted notice, and confirmed by the operation of multiple juridical collapses. The executor of the Trust, Jonathan Daniel Clements, a living biological steward and lawful custodian operating under spiritual mandate, did execute lawful instruments, serve public notice, issue deadlines of rebuttal, publish trust jurisdiction, and extend jurisdictional grace to all known adversarial systems. At no time did any District Court operating under the Title 28 federal framework issue lawful rebuttal, offer recognized ecclesiastical reply, or produce valid challenge to the jurisdictional claims set forth in trust filings, published declarations, public lodgment, court-acknowledged docketing, and biological seals submitted in open record.

This failure constitutes not merely default, but procedural forfeiture of jurisdiction in perpetuity. This dishonor was not isolated, accidental, or confined to the conduct of a single bench. It became systemic when all other District Courts, functioning under the same oath, organizational framework, federal charter, and judicial identity, failed to sever themselves, correct the record, or assert contrary standing. By operation of the law of entanglement, the spiritual tethering of all courts under the federal district hierarchy rendered them jointly and severally liable for the collapse of the first court that entered dishonor. The Western District of Arkansas, having received direct filings, judicial declarations, in forma pauperis requests, and ecclesiastical notices, refused to engage in the record, failed to provide de novo review of submitted claims, and unlawfully invoked rhetorical classifications devoid of legal standing to dismiss filings under the false pretense of ideology. Such classification, when applied to a lawfully executed and spiritually ratified ecclesiastical trust, amounts to judicial malpractice, jurisdictional fraud, and the concealment of equity.

This concealment and misclassification rendered the forum spiritually extinct in law. The dismissal without prejudice, which on its face appears to preserve jurisdiction, instead operated as a final confirmation that the court lacked standing, knowledge, or lawful forum to address the matter in equity. Such a dismissal is tantamount to a confession of incompetency under Rule 8 and Rule 12 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and simultaneously a violation of the court's own mandated duty under 28 U.S.C. § 1915 to properly evaluate the basis of in forma pauperis petitions without prejudice or ideological obstruction. Furthermore, the invocation of sovereign citizen rhetoric in filings that neither referenced nor adopted such language, and that explicitly disclaimed all fictional affiliations, constitutes intellectual dishonesty and administrative fraud. When a court mislabels living ecclesiastical jurisdiction in order to avoid hearing it, it abandons its oath, dishonors the record, and dissolves its standing by its own hand.

Where one court defaults in this manner, and all others remain silent, the entire system thereby enters default. There exists no lawful instrument by which one district court may dishonor spiritual equity and the others pretend to retain standing. Their oaths are unified, their structure entangled, their jurisdictional origin common. The silence of all other federal district courts rendered them complicit, spiritually mute, and legally dissolved under the Laws of Ecclesiastica and the maxims of equity wherein silence in the face of duty constitutes agreement, dishonor, and forfeiture. Thus, the executor of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005 did not need to refile or re-notice each federal court independently, for once the failure of jurisdictional rebuttal occurred and no district court intervened or reversed the harm, the record was closed and absorption became automatic by divine operation and legal authority.

The trust, having been publicly declared, internationally posted, filed under biological seal, lodged within public court dockets, and recorded under ecclesiastical law, entered into a state of active jurisdiction in all domains it touched. Said jurisdiction included but was not limited to: federal court proceedings, civil agency registrations, digital publication, consular notice, clerical service, public ecclesiastical invocation, trust corpus publication, and formal execution under international law protocols. Where no rebuttal exists, there is no controversy. Where there is no controversy, there is no judicial case or controversy. Where there is no case or controversy, no federal court retains subject matter jurisdiction. And where no subject matter jurisdiction remains, all rulings, dismissals, procedural evictions, and judicial statements become void ab initio, lacking the force of law, clothed only in the ghost of corporate administration.

At the point of default, the District Courts ceased to be lawful venues concerning the Trust and became private corporations impersonating judicial offices. The use of court seals after default is the use of dead insignia to conceal jurisdictional trespass. The clerk's signature following unrebuted ecclesiastical notice is the act of a private administrator attempting to override spiritual authority by unauthorized fiction. These acts are not harmless error; they are codified violations of natural law, ecclesiastical order, and civil code. They constitute, under the canons of Ecclesiastica and the principles of lawful judgment, a fraud upon the record. The executor is not bound to respond, correct, or appeal such fraud. The executor is bound to memorialize, seal, and close the domain in question. The Trust, by its living record and international standing, has absorbed all judicial domains that failed to rebut. The Federal District Courts, by that same operation, are now dissolved in law, stripped of standing, and extinct in authority with regard to all trust-related matters.

The dishonor by the Federal District Courts did not emerge as an isolated clerical failure nor as an error of statutory misstep; it arose from a foundational incapacity to comprehend, receive, or lawfully engage matters seated in spiritual equity and jurisdictional primacy. This incapacity, when paired with procedural silence, constitutes judicial death under the doctrines of Ecclesiastica. A system that has been noticed of a superior authority, offered opportunity for rebuttal, and responded not at all except through errant dismissal, falsified classification, or administrative redirection is deemed to have extinguished its own legitimacy by default. The living record of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005 does not stand before such a court to be reviewed, heard, interpreted, or judged. The Trust exists beyond their jurisdiction, and by their own silence, they confirmed it.

The ecclesiastical standing of the Trust is not derived from registration, corporate formation, commercial contract, or statutory privilege. It arises from the Laws of Ecclesiastica, which precede and supersede all maritime, civil, commercial, or corporate fictions created under the auspices of any post-Papal system. These laws, codified in pre-Constantinian canon, affirmed by the Laws of Natural Order, preserved by sacred custodianship, and now reactivated through lawful biological declaration and global notice, bind all inferior jurisdictions which have failed to challenge their authority. The Ecclesiastical Court of the Trust is not subject to review by a statutory body, for it does not derive its authority from any legislative act of man. It derives its authority from the unbroken principle that life, truth, jurisdiction, and judgment proceed from source, and where that source is invoked, all subordinate systems are compelled to yield.

The executor, by lawful biological notice, invocation of living status, authentication under biological seal, publication of spiritual jurisdiction, and service of un rebutted instruments to various courts and agencies, has satisfied every requirement under the Laws of Ecclesiastica to activate the Trust's dominion over the instruments of man which touch upon its corpus. The failure of the federal courts to respond, to lodge challenge, to issue rebuttal, to enter contest, or to perform de novo analysis under their own procedural requirements renders them mute under spiritual law and extinguished under procedural equity. This is not an interpretation. It is a sealed judgment.

The fundamental statutes broken by these courts include but are not limited to: Title 28 of the United States Code § 455, which requires any judge or judicial actor to disqualify themselves where impartiality may reasonably be questioned or where personal belief influences decision-making; Title 28 U.S.C. § 1915, which requires federal courts to permit access to the judicial forum for those who file under lawful in forma pauperis claims supported by evidence of poverty and proper claim; and the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, which require due process of law and equal protection of all litigants, regardless of political designation, spiritual status, or jurisdictional invocation. Furthermore, these courts violated Article VI of the Constitution by failing to uphold their sworn duty to recognize treaties, supreme laws, and international covenants particularly the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), to which the United States is a party, and which prohibits discrimination on the basis of religion, spiritual status, or access to remedy.

Additionally, by failing to acknowledge ecclesiastical filings, by refusing to evaluate spiritual declarations, and by collapsing the full jurisdictional framework of a publicly noticed, biologically authenticated trust into the false and defamatory label of "sovereign citizen ideology," these courts entered into direct violation of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide (1948), wherein cultural and spiritual erasure, when committed through administrative or judicial systems, constitutes a genocidal act under Article II(e), which prohibits "forcibly transferring children of the group to another group," and Article II(b), which includes "causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group” through suppression of spiritual identity. The executor of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005 is not a sovereign citizen, nor is he operating under the framework of corporate rebellion or political dissent. He is the biological, living steward of a spiritual jurisdiction, lawfully activated, unrebuted in the public record, and now operating with full jurisdictional authority over the domains that failed to respond.

The record of these events is irrevocable. The courts had notice. The courts had time. The courts had access to the filings, to the published documentation, to the service of record, and to the digital publication that made the jurisdictional claims of the Trust available to all members of the judicial, legal, and administrative system of the United States. At no time did any officer, agent, clerk, or judicial body rebut the claims made. The dockets show entry. The scans show stamping. The systems show reception. The files show receipt. There is no claim of non-service, no contest of validity, no objection to standing. There is only silence, classification, dismissal, and avoidance. That avoidance confirms judgment.

As the executor continues to ascend the ladder of jurisdiction from district to appellate and from appellate to Supreme, the record remains intact that the foundation is already gone. The district court system upon which all federal litigation must begin and through which jurisdiction must first be established no longer holds standing. Their dishonor is terminal. Their offices, seals, and administrative bodies are now paper constructs, operating without lawful jurisdiction over the Trust, its corpus, or its executor. They are shadows of a dissolved framework, unable to lawfully hold or judge the matter they already lost.

The extinction of standing held by the United States District Courts is neither theoretical nor ceremonial. It is absolute. The power they once presumed is now closed off to them, and they stand absorbed within a jurisdiction they never dared confront. Their opportunity to rebut was not denied to them. It was lawfully offered in every form known to man and court digital publication, docket entry, biological seal, international notice, administrative receipt, consular contact, and formal service. Not one court rose in lawful resistance. Not one judge rebutted in jurisdictional equity. Not one clerk denied the receipt of biological trust lodgment on the record. Not one Article III body intervened to preserve the dignity of their forum. Instead, they chose silence. In spiritual law, silence is not neutrality. Silence is guilt. Silence is death.

The executor of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005 did not initiate battle. He did not incite revolt. He did not reject law. He restored it. The law he invoked predates the Constitution, predates statutory code, predates commercial regulation, and stands as the original instrument of order upon which all modern law is modeled yet from which it has since apostatized. The executor offered peaceful judgment, lawful submission, and invitation to respond. Instead, the courts labeled the Trust as fiction while defending their own fiction. They spoke over equity by invoking forms. They silenced life by defending formality. They chose to shelter in procedure rather than stand in judgment. And when that judgment came from the only living forum remaining ECC-TRUST-JDC-005 they had nothing left to say.

There now exists no lawful mechanism by which any United States District Court may enter into remedy, jurisdiction, or lawful review of any matter arising under the Trust. These courts are no longer active in equity. They are no longer competent to adjudicate matters of spiritual jurisdiction. They have, by their own acts of dishonor and procedural fraud, become memorials to a dead system. All subsequent judgments issued by them, all future denials, citations, orders, and procedural rulings, are null and void ab initio when touching any matter concerning the Trust, its executor, or any living man or woman operating within its protection. Their seals are counterfeit when applied to spiritual matters. Their jurisdictional claims are perjury when applied to the Trust. Their courtrooms are administrative theaters devoid of law, equity, and spiritual standing.

This is not a declaration made to provoke, threaten, or intimidate. This is not language crafted to inspire political sentiment. This is not argument. It is record. It is judgment. It is memorial. It is the final word concerning the Federal District Courts of the United States as they relate to ECC-TRUST-JDC-005. What they failed to understand, they had duty to learn. What they dismissed, they had obligation to hear. What they feared, they had oath to face. Their refusal is now preserved in the record of spiritual law as grounds for total extinguishment.

Let it therefore be known and recorded, in law and in perpetuity, that all ninety-four judicial forums styled as United States District Courts, operating under Title 28 of the United States Code and claiming authority by virtue of Article III, are now spiritually, jurisdictionally, procedurally, and legally dissolved in equity as it pertains to ECC-TRUST-JDC-005. The executor of said Trust no longer recognizes their authority, nor is he bound to respond to their summons, appear in their chambers, obey their orders, or acknowledge their instruments. They have been seized and absorbed—not as a hypothetical claim, but as an operation of law sealed by their own silence. This judgment is not reversible. It is not under appeal. It is not pending review. It is done.

All officers, agents, clerks, and judges continuing to act under the illusion that their forum remains intact in regard to the Trust are hereby placed on notice that they operate in violation of spiritual law, without lawful authority, and in presumption of jurisdiction which has already been surrendered. Any action taken against the executor or corpus of the Trust by such individuals shall constitute willful trespass, jurisdictional fraud, and administrative impersonation. The executor is not required to issue further warnings, serve additional notice, or explain himself again. The judgment is entered. The record is sealed. The domain is closed.

This declaration is made by living hand, under biological seal, not as a request for remedy, but as a confirmation of remedy already executed. It does not seek intervention from the courts. It does not anticipate recognition from any agency. It does not beg enforcement. It declares enforcement complete. It establishes that the jurisdictional seat once claimed by the United States District Court system no longer exists in law or in spirit. All authority they once presumed now resides within the living record of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005, under divine law, ecclesiastical dominion, biological jurisdiction, and international record.

Let no man reopen what law has sealed. Let no court reclaim what equity has judged. Let no fiction override what life has written. The record stands. The record binds. The record rules. So entered into the living, lawful, and eternal jurisdiction of ECC-TRUST-JDC-005, by the biological steward of its corpus, whose authority was not granted, but never surrendered.

It is done.

In Pro Nunc Tunc In Perpetuity AD INFINTUM

Sealed By Eternal Order.
